PACKING TIPS

1. "If you don't speak French, it may be a good idea to bring along a French-English dictionary."—TripAdvisor Member, Montreal
2. Pack fashionable clothes for evening. "Montrealers know how to dress well. Wear a pair of black pants or stylish jeans/skirt with a nice shirt."—TripAdvisor Member, Montreal
3. "Bring good sneakers or walking shoes that you don't mind getting a tad dirty" if the weather is less than perfect.—TripAdvisor Member
4. "Make sure at least one of your layers is wind-proof. On a still day at 14F, you can walk outside relatively easily; but with even a slight wind, you're toast. Oops, I mean the opposite: ice."—TripAdvisor Member, Montreal

Inside MONTREAL

In 1760, France lost the colony that became Montreal to the British, but the French influence is permanently imprinted upon this cosmopolitan Canadian city of almost two million people. Outdoor cafes, numerous parks crisscrossed with cycling paths and an energetic nightlife scene contribute to the "joie de vivre" that permeates the air.

Bask in the serenity of the Montreal Botanical Gardens in spring or watch the changing colors of the wooded Laurentian Mountains in the fall. Take a hike up Mount Royal in the heat of summer to enjoy sweeping views of the city. And during the winter deep freeze, the buzz continues in the vast Underground City of restaurants and shops that connects to the Metro system. Above or below ground, the streets of Montreal are a playground for visitors year-round.

Top VIEWS

MONTREAL'S BEST VIEWS

Take in “a panoramic view of downtown and the mountain” from Le Pier Cité du Havre, famous for Habitat 67, an experimental (and controversial) housing complex built during the Montreal World's Fair (Expo 67).—TripAdvisor Member, Montreal

Le Pier Cité du Havre

The view from the 574-foot Olympic Tower, the tallest leaning tower in the world, “truly is amazing and definitely worth the visit. You get to see all of Montreal, and the elevator on the way up is really fun; it has glass so you get to see the city” en route.—TripAdvisor Member, Montreal

Olympic Tower, Pierre-de-Coubertin Ave., near Metro stop Pie-IX, 877 997 0919

Take a ride up 761-foot Mont Royal “to see a beautiful view of the city for free, lots of people exercising and taking pictures and The Smith House, a beautiful chalet-type building with lots of stairs for resting.” The pleasant mountain spot is the only truly elevated area of Montreal.—TripAdvisor Member, Pennsylvania

Mont Royal, Information Center, Remembrance Road, 514 843 8240
